Overview
The Department of Clinical Nutrition at The Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia is pleased to announce the 2016 symposium: Emerging Topics in Pediatric Nutrition. This one-day, multidisciplinary conference brings experts from across the country together to provide evidence-based, practical guidelines for some of the most challenging topics pediatric nutrition practitioners face today.

Target Audience
Dietitians, physicians, nurse practitioners, nurses, social workers and other allied healthcare professionals.

Objectives
Upon completion of this program, participants will be able to:
1. Describe emerging evidence-based nutritional therapies for the highlighted conditions
2. Explain the current literature and practice recommendations for managing complex scenarios including malnutrition, patients with low energy needs, and nutrition provision in the palliative care setting
3. Discuss when and how to evaluate nutrition-related laboratory values in both the inpatient and outpatient settings

General Information
The conference will be held in the Colket Translational Research Building. Registration will begin at 7:30 a.m.
