Transitions—Looking Ahead

You will experience many transitions, small and large, over the years. One predictable transition is when you move from adolescence into adulthood. Other transitions may involve moving into new programs, working with new agencies and care providers, or making new friends. Transitions involve changes: adding new expectations, responsibilities, or resources, and letting go of others.

It's not always easy to think about the future. There may be many things, including what has to be done today, that keep you from looking ahead. It may be helpful to take some time to jot down a few ideas about your future. You might start by thinking about your strengths. How can these strengths help you plan for “what's next” and for reaching long term goals? What are your dreams and your fears about your future?
